

For people who love beautiful things...

This beautiful table epitomises Heartwood's unique combination of stunning Australian native timber, innovative and artistic design solutions and masterful craftsmanship.

Joining the boards as a 'book-matched' pair and retaining the natural shape of the outer edges creatively harnesses the character of this eye-catching Blackheart Sassafras timber. The striking impact of the definitive black streaking is further enhanced as it flows across the top, cascades over the crisply mitred end and down to the floor. At the other end, a boxed pedestal in Freckled Cooktown Ironwood provides practical storage for tableware. Push-release drawers negate the need for handles so as to maintain the crisp flat surfaces that wonderfully contrast with the earthy, tactile top edges.

Company principal, designer and maker Greg Smyth draws upon over 25 years experience as a solid timber furniture maker. His stylistic influences range from classics such as Art Deco and Biedermeier, to minimalist modern and avant-garde. His design focus reflects a broad range of design ideas and innovative custom solutions that are applied to everything from a simple dining suite, entertainment cabinet or sideboard to a complete home office, library or one off, extraordinary 'art' piece like the table shown.

If you are looking for furniture designed with passion and flair, then a visit to Heartwood's showroom and workshop to see and touch some examples of our work is a must. You will find us located in Melbourne's artistic heartland of Eltham.
